Red Lily Public Health Team’s action on COVID-19

During this time of unfamiliarity, Red Lily has been engaging and educating the Bininj people in the Kakadu community with information about Coronavirus (COVID-19) and what it will look like for their community.

Packs in Kunwinjku and English (information supplied from www.health.gov.au), that explain what the coronavirus (COVID-19) is and how to stop the spread of the virus, what they can do to keep safe and healthy are being distributed to communities.

In the interest of offering mental health and well-being, Red Lily will continue supporting all Kakadu communities with current situations. Louise Mayclair from Jabiru Catholic Care is also joining Red Lily and spreading the word that we are all here to support them for any emotional or social wellbeing concerns they may have.

“Meet & Greet” with local community at Minjilang

On 27th February 2020, Red Lily Health team visited Minjilang which is the Aboriginal community located on Croker Island, approximately 250 km north-east of Northern Territory's capital of Darwin. The team traveled with representatives from the NT and Commonwealth Departments of Health to interact with the local community. A BBQ lunch was organised to share with local community members. Reuben Cooper, the chair of Red Lily Health Board; Stephen Hayes, Transition Manager of Red Lily and Brad Palmer, Business Manager of Red Lily shared information about Red Lily's mission, vision and values to ensure better health for the local community.

Red Lily supporting FAFT

The Red Lily Community Educator at Jabiru supports FAFT (Family as First Teachers) every Wednesday for Wellbeing Days.

The work includes engaging with the mums and bubs, age 0-4 years, to support them with their social and emotional wellbeing by making them feel comfortable to express their feelings without fear of shame.

Red Lily assists FAFT by providing nutritional health education while preparing nourishing lunches in a culturally safe environment.

The program is frequently accessed by several communities from the Kakadu region.
